

Cinderella's Magical Wheelchair

Written by Jewel Kats

Illustrations by Richa Kinra

Cinderella's

Magical Wheelchair

An Empowering Fairy Tale

by Jewel Kats

Illustrated by Richa Kinra

From the Growing With Love Series

Loving Healing Press

Cinderella's Magical Wheelchair : An Empowering Fairy Tale

Copyright (c) 2011 by Jewel Kats. All Rights Reserved.

Illustrated by Richa Kinra

From the Growing With Love Series

Author's site www.JewelKats.com

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Kats, Jewel, 1978-

Cinderella's magical wheelchair : an empowering fairy tale / by Jewel Kats ; illustrated by Richa Kinra.

ISBN 978-1-61599-112-9 (pbk. : alk. paper) – ISBN 978-1-61599-113-6 (hardcover : alk. paper)

1. Self-realization – Fiction. 2. People with disabilities – Fiction. 3. Stepfamilies – Fiction. 4. Princes – Fiction. 5. Magic – Fiction. 6. Fairy tales. I. Kinra, Richa, ill. II. Title.

PZ7.K157445Cin 2011

IE1 – dc23

2011028455

Distributed by Ingram Book Group (USA), Bertrams Books (UK)

Published by

Loving Healing Press Inc.
5145 Pontiac Trail
Ann Arbor, MI 48105

www.LHPress.com
info@LHPress.com

Tollfree USA/CAN: 888-761-6268
London, UK: 44-20-331-81304

For any child
who's faced an illness,
accident or injury.

In a Kingdom far, far away lives Cinderella. One summer evening, she's called while perfuming Stepmother's gym socks. Cinderella wheels into the kitchen super quick. Everyone is already seated around the oak dinner table.

"Hurry up, slowpoke!" Stepmother snaps. She drums her fingers. "I have important news to share."

"What is it, Mother?" the twins singsong.

Stepmother smirks. "The King is ill. He wants to see his only son married. He's hosting a costume party for the Prince to meet all interested women. And my girls are interested, alright!"

"How awesome!" the twins shout. They give each other high-fives.

“Will I be going?” Cinderella pipes up, twisting her hands nervously.
“You’re kidding, right?” the elder-by-a-minute twin sneers.
“No, I’m not,” Cinderella answers quietly. “I’d like to attend.”
Both stepsisters lock their heavily made-up eyes. Together, they release a loud snort.
“I’m afraid we’re talking about a Royal costume party – not a charity ball,” the younger twin says. “Wake up, Cinderella. Wheelchair-mobile Princesses don’t exist.”
Cinderella’s cherry cheeks heat up.
“Now, now,” Stepmother interjects, “there’s no need to be rude. It’s not like she’s some threat.”
Stepmother glares hard at Cinderella. “You enjoy jewellery-making in your spare time, correct?”
Cinderella nods. “Yes, ma’am.”
“Well, then, I’ll let you tag along if you manage to create stunning jewellery for the twins.” Stepmother sticks out her bony hand. “Deal?”
“You can count on me,” Cinderella says, sealing the agreement with a handshake.